Supplying authority
European Commission
Target
Help to educate and sensitize young people to prevent and combat gender violence.
Actions

Transnational projects concerning one or more of the following activities:

- Education and awareness activities such as campaigns, demonstrations, workshops;

- Capacity-building and training for professionals and volunteers who have contact with boys and girls and which are or will be involved in educational activities aimed at combating gender-based violence, including teachers and their trainers, school psychologists, sports coaches, youth leaders, the organizers of extracurricular activities and other similar professionals and volunteers.

The activities can be carried out in formal education and non-formal contexts or in other contexts. They are particularly encouraged multi-component campaigns, able to combine different methods of education and awareness.

The education and awareness should focus on providing girls and boys under 18, information and expertise on gender equality, stereotypes and gender roles, positive relationships, respect for others, and so on. These initiatives should stimulate critical thinking of young people so that they can challenge the habits that contribute to perpetuate gender-based violence. It also strongly encouraged the education and awareness of those who are violent spectator so intervene.

The education and awareness activities can address all forms of gender violence or specific forms, such as female genital mutilation, forced marriages or particular vulnerable social groups to violence, such as LGBTI community, ethnic or religious minorities, migrants, etc.
